

Since the Indiana DO NOT CALL list has been in place the calls have nearly stopped. It seems to have been effective since I used to get 10-15 calls per week and now it's once a month or so.

I feel that it is NOT a right of any business to TAKE my time away from my family and interrupt my peaceful home. They have other options for marketing their products or services to the consumers. This one is absolutely an invasion of my privacy and peaceful home.

Telemarketing is a low life boiler room business to acquire sales. If I need or want something I will initiate contact.

I want to keep Indiana's law as it is and feel that a national/federal watered down law would be a political sham.
